mr angiography (mra) - radiologyinfo - in magnetic resonance angiography (mra), a powerful magnetic field, radio frequency waves and a computer produce detailed images of the major arteries within the body. mr angiography does not use ionizing radiation (x-rays). mra may be performed with or without contrast material. if needed, the contrast material is usually comparison of test performance characteristics of mri, mr ... - traction angiography (dsa) (i.e., catheter angiography) for diagnosis. in some populations, the rate of dissection of the craniocervical arteries has been diagnosed at rates 3-10 times greater than that determined before the use of mri, mr angiography (mra), and, more recently ct angiography contrast-enhanced mr angiography of the hand - contrast material-enhanced magnetic resonance (mr) angiography of the hand noninvasively provides information comparable to that provided by conventional angiography. it is a quick and easy examination that takes less than 5 minutes to perform and produces high-quality images with use of a dedicated surface coil that provides a high signal- conventional mri and mr angiography of stroke - conventional mri and mr angiography of stroke chapter 6 117 in the hyperacute period (first 6 h), there is shift of water from the extracellular to the intracellular space but there may be little increase in overall tissue water. therefore, while the development of altered signal intensity on flair- or t2-weighted images may occur mra - mr angiography - final - different in several important ways. mr angiography is a less invasive, safer alternative to a traditional catheter angiogram procedure (in which a small cut is made in the skin, a thin plastic tube called a catheter is inserted into an artery to release an x-ray sensitive contrast material, and an x-ray is taken). how it works mr angiography of the lower extremities - ajronline - enhanced mr angiography (mra) of left lower extremity arteries after iv administration of 45 ml of gadolinium-based contrast agent is performed on 1.5-t mr system. iliac arteries are widely patent. left superficial femoral artery is occluded at its origin. extensive collaterals from femoral artery attempt to reconstitute run-off vessels. mr angiography and ct angiography of the artery of ... - mr angiography. the imaging technique for mr angiography has been reported previously (8). mr angiography was performed with a 1.5-t superconducting mr imaging system (signa excite x1; ge medical systems, milwaukee, wis) and 11.0 system software, along with a four-channel phased-array coil for the spine to optimize signal detection. coronary mr angiography - cardiologyclinics - coronary mr angiography. other technical impediments include the relatively small coronary artery diameter (2.7 to 3.5 mm), the tortuous course of the vessels, and the surrounding epicardial fat. the interpretation of coronary mr angiography, especially for the left circumflex coronary artery, is further limited. non-contrast enhanced mr angiography: physical principles - review: mr physics for clinicians non-contrast enhanced mr angiography: physical principles andrew j. wheaton, phd and mitsue miyazaki, phd* toshiba medical research institute, vernon hills, illinois, usa. subject: magnetic resonance angiography (mra) abdomen and ... - magnetic resonance angiography (mra) is a noninvasive imaging technology, which generates images of the arteries that can be evaluated for evidence of stenosis, occlusion or aneurysms. mra is used to evaluate the arteries of the abdominal aorta and the renal arteries. a contrast agent (gadolinium) may time-resolved mr angiography for evaluation of the central ... - time-resolved mr angiography for evaluation of the central veins of the chest charles kim, m.d. duke university medical center dept. of vascular & interventional intracranial mr angiography: its role in the integrated ... - intracranial mr angiography: its role in the integrated approach to brain infarction blake a. johnson, joseph e. heiserman, burton p. drayer, and paul j. keller purpose: to determine the contribution of cranial mr angiography (mra) for the evaluation of patients with acute and subacute brain infarction. methods: mr and mra studies performed on brain mr angiography - e smil - mr angiography is a medical test that helps radiologists diagnose medical conditions related to blood vessels in the brain. in magnetic resonance angiography (mra), a powerful magnetic field, radio waves and a computer produce the detailed images. mr angiography does not use ionizing radiation (x-rays). mr angiography may be performed without or intracranial vascular stenosis and occlusive disease ... - intracranial vascular stenosis and occlusive disease: evaluation with ct angiography, mr angiography, and digital subtraction angiography suzie bash, j. pablo villablanca, reza jahan, gary duckwiler, monica tillis, chelsea kidwell,
